DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wursch et al ('184).

The device as claimed is disclosed by Wursch et al with a power drill 3 with a first handle (next to the trigger) integrally connected to a housing, an electric motor disposed within the housing, a drill chuck powered by the electric motor, and an auxiliary handle 10 rotatably attached to the housing comprising a handle grip and a first laser generator 5.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-5, 9, 11, and 16-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wursch et al ('184) in view of Le.

The device as claimed is disclosed by Wursch et al as stated in the rejection recited above for claims 13-15, but lacks the first laser generator producing a fanned laser beam and a sub-handle with a second laser generator producing a fanned laser beam in a common plane with the central axis of the collar.

Le teaches using a first laser generator to produce a fan shaped beam to project an alignment line on a wall and a second laser generator to produce a second fan shaped beam to project an alignment line on a wall which intersects the first line to produce an alignment cross on the wall. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the laser of Wursch et al ('184) fan shaped as taught by Le to produce an alignment line on the workpiece during use of the device. It also would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include a sub-handle with a second laser generator to produce a second fan shaped beams in Wursch et al ('184) as taught by Le to produce an intersecting line to the first line on the workpiece to provide an alignment cross point on the workpiece.

5. Claims 10 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wursch et al ('184) in view of Le as applied to claims 1-5, 9, 11, and 16-19 above, and further in view of Wightman.

The device as claimed is disclosed by the combination of Wursch et al and Le together as stated in the rejection recited above for claims 1-5, 9, 11, and 16-19, but lacks the auxiliary handle having a bubble level to aide in leveling the drill during use of the device. Wightman teaches using an auxiliary handle 44 having a bubble level 70 to aide in leveling the drill during use of the device. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to add a bubble level to the auxiliary handle of the combination of Wursch et al ('184) and Le together as taught by Wightman to aide in leveling the drill during use of the device.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 6-8, 20, and 21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
